FROM WARRIORS... TO WORKPLACE WINNERS!

A Wounded Warriors welcomed the chance to intern with a Junction City, Kansas bio-tech startup company.

A Warrior wanted to try his hand at marine Mechanics. "He is eager and willing to work," says the business owner. "We'd like to keep him."

THEY DID SO MUCH . . .

And they're ready to do so much more.

Your contribution provides Wounded Warriors an opportunity to transition to civilian life.
Contribute to;
Welcome Home to Heroes Foundation,
the civilian partner to WIN!
(Warriors Internship Network)

Internship program

Project WIN is designed to help our transitioning warriors and their families receive professional training and experience in a potential future career field.

It allows warriors the opportunity to explore careers while they heal.

Interns have the opportunity to train with a business while continuing to earn their normal military pay.

While training, they are surrounded by people who are committed to helping them learn.

Internship participants increase their prospects for full-time positions, as well as their network opportunities, within the community.

Internships are being created throughout the central Kansas area including Fort Riley, Junction City, Manhattan, Topeka and other regional communities.

Assessment

The WTB Chain-of-Command screens interested soldiers for participation in the internship program and refers them to the SFAC Guidance Counselor.

The guidance counselor administers an interest inventory and skill assessment for each soldier and then refers the soldier to Occupational Therapy.

Occupational Therapy

Occupational Therapy screens each soldier and reviews every work site to make sure it lends itself to the soldier's needs. The occupational therapist then refers the soldier to the Welcome Home to Heroes Foundation.

Welcome Home to Heroes Foundation

The foundation handles placements, provides workers compensation and general liability insurance, monitors all internships and maintains records on the interns and employers.

Civilian partner provides

The employer provides a supervised work experience, occupational evaluations and general reviews as requested.

Employer benefits

- A worker who wants to be there.
- A worker whose work ethic exceeds expectations.
- A worker willing to take responsibility.
- A worker tolerant of his environment and change.
- A valuable worker with quality innate and developed attributes.

Note

The soldier is not promised a full time position, nor is the employer promised a full time employee. If a work relationship is desired beyond the internship, it is worked out between the soldier and employer.

What you can do for those who have done so much!

As the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq continue, the need for the Foundation's services grows. Employers do not pay wages or benefits to the intern, but rather are encouraged to donate to the Welcome Home to Heroes Foundation. Their donations alone are not enough to underwrite the placement of warriors and their spouses, pay transportation costs (gas) when needed nor assist with other work related and family initiatives.

A contribution from you acknowledges your appreciation for our nation's Wounded Warriors, assists with their transition and grows our nation's workforce. Your contribution helps to serve warriors already in our care and extends placement services to other warriors at other military installations and communities throughout the country.
